Haley Adams and HimToo – A Movement of White Nationalists and Rape Apologists

Posted on November 25, 2018 by Torch Antifa Network

On November 17, 2018, Patriot Prayer member Haley Adams is holding a misogynist and rape-apologist rally in downtown Portland, co-hosted by Patriot Prayer leader Joey Gibson, and Quincy Anatello, a member of the Christian extremist group the “Hell Shaking Street Preachers”. Uniting the event’s messaging under the hashtag #HimToo, Adams and Patriot Prayer are producing propaganda that pretends there is an epidemic of false rape allegations against men equivalent to or exceeding in volume and severity to the horrifying realities of sexual harassment, rape, domestic violence, and murder of women and non-men in our society. The violence and the reliable presence of neo-Nazis and other fascists at Patriot Prayer events has already been well-established by Rose City Antifa and other media outlets. In this article, Rose City Antifa will document a number of violent men with documented histories of domestic and sexual violence or violence against women, whom Adams specifically invited to her rally. Not only is the premise of a “him too” rally ridiculous on its face, the behavior of Patriot Prayer, Proud Boys, Street Preachers and other associated far-right and white nationalist groups, both on the streets of Portland and in their private lives, shows that they are the exact the sort of threat described by the concept of “rape culture.”

Men are certainly also victimized by the sexual and domestic violence and rape culture. However, Haley and Patriot Prayer’s usage of the #HimToo hashtag has overwhelmingly ignored the possibility that men might be victims of violence in favor of simply “triggering the libs,” and publicly mocking and discrediting any claims of sexual violence. The event on the November 17 is sure to be one more iteration of right-wing public harassment from Adams, Patriot Prayer, and the Street Preachers, as they threaten, abuse, violate, dehumanize, and incite violence against marginalized people.

Haley Adams

Haley Adams is a white nationalist member of Patriot Prayer who made her first appearance with semi-organized far-right activists in Portland on April 29, 2017, when Joey Gibson exploited an anonymous letter in order to storm through Portland’s Montavilla neighborhood with a number of fascists who threw roman salutes and left white supremacist graffiti in their wake. Jeremy Christian was one of the white supremacists who attended that rally, who less than a month later would murder two people and seriously wound a third, who attempted to stand in the way of him harassing two young Muslim women on a MAX train. Since that time, Adams has been a consistent presence at Patriot Prayer and Proud Boy events and struggled to transform herself into an alt-right celebrity.

In a stunning example of lackluster journalism, NPR recently ran a story on #HimToo which merely cited Haley Adams as a “Portland resident” who was organizing the rally, and provided absolutely no context about her long record of alt-right organizing, her overt racism and misogyny, or the violence her fascist friends have consistently perpetrated at rallies.

Adams fans share memes about murdering activists

Haley Adams regularly creates and engages with posts advocating Charlottesville-style vehicular murders, including on #HimToo posts.

Remember Emmett Till? He was accused of sexually harassing Carolyn Donham. Her lie led to his unimaginable death. An open casket revealed the putrid nature of a lie, of hatred, of believing a "survivor" over the self-evident truth.

Adams claims Emmett Till was lynched simply because a false allegation of sexual harassment was made against him, ignoring the overwhelming context of racist Jim Crow laws at the time. Her callous and dishonest use of Till's murder in a meme promoting a reactionary moral panic gets to the heart of the bad faith within #himtoo, and perpetuates the routine exploitation of black suffering that is integral to white supremacy.

Haley spreads racism and conspiracy theories

Tweets posted by Haley Adams show that she is more than happy to participate in spreading unfounded rape accusations, as long as they further racist Islamophobic talking points or dangerous #PizzaGate style conspiracy theories.

Adams frequently extolls racist themes on “White Pride” and “white power” on her social media accounts. She also wore a helmet decorated with the neo-Nazi propaganda slogan “It’s Okay To Be White” at Joey Gibson’s violent June 30, 2018 rally in downtown Portland, where she marched with fascists, some of whom had also participated in the infamous and deadly August 2017 neo-Nazi rally in Charlottesville.

The Violent Misogyny of Patriot Prayer and the Proud Boys

Adams' rally purports to defend men who have been falsely accused of misogynist violence, but court records and other documentation clearly show that the people with whom she has spent the past two years rallying includes a number of men with histories of domestic and sexual violence.

Zerfing has long been a member of Patriot Prayer.

Skyler Coy

After Coy participated in the violence Joey Gibson organized on October 13, 2018, local anti-fascist researchers began publicizing hints of his history of misogynist violence. Coy responded by dishonestly claiming on his facebook that he is the one who has “the only restraining order” – no such court order currently exists.

Fascist Patriot Prayer follower and Proud Boy Russell Schultz shares a meme implying that all women who come forward with personal experiences of sexual abuse are trying to trick people for financial gain. This rape apologist meme is then shared by the main HimToo facebook group. Haley Adams' mother, Concetta Marie Adams (aka Concetta Andrizzi Adams) also chimes in and makes the claim that every woman who came forward with personal experiences of sexual abuse was lying.

 Sean Wade calls for misogynist violence

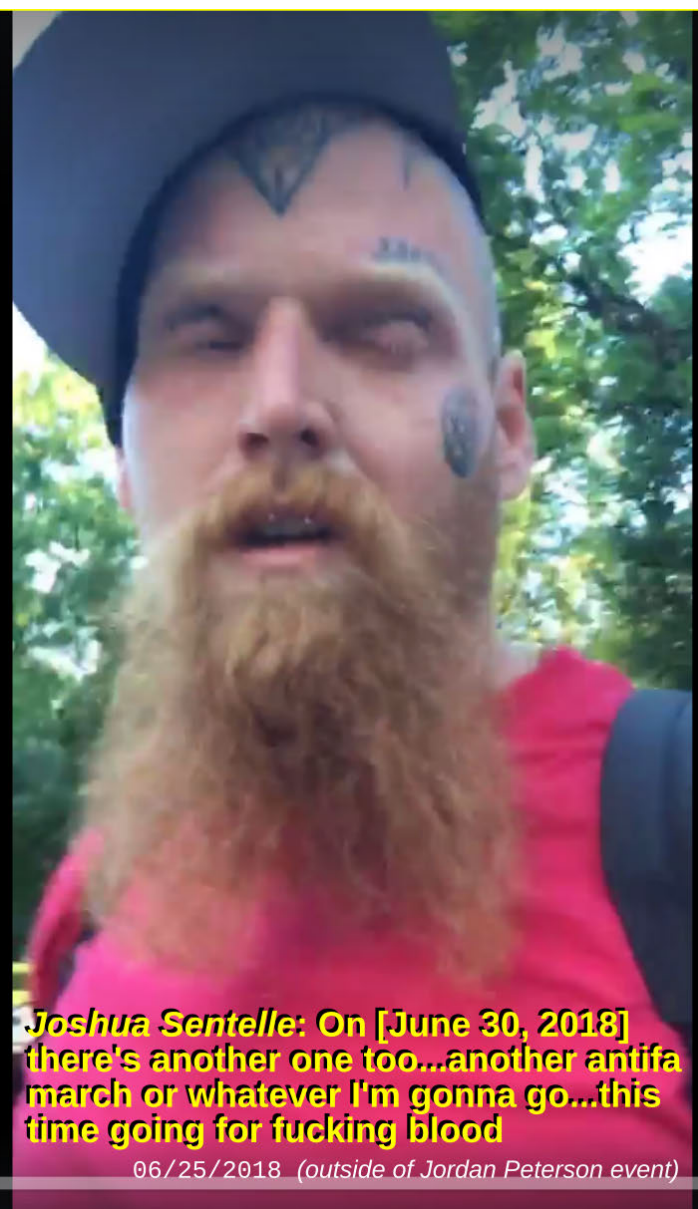

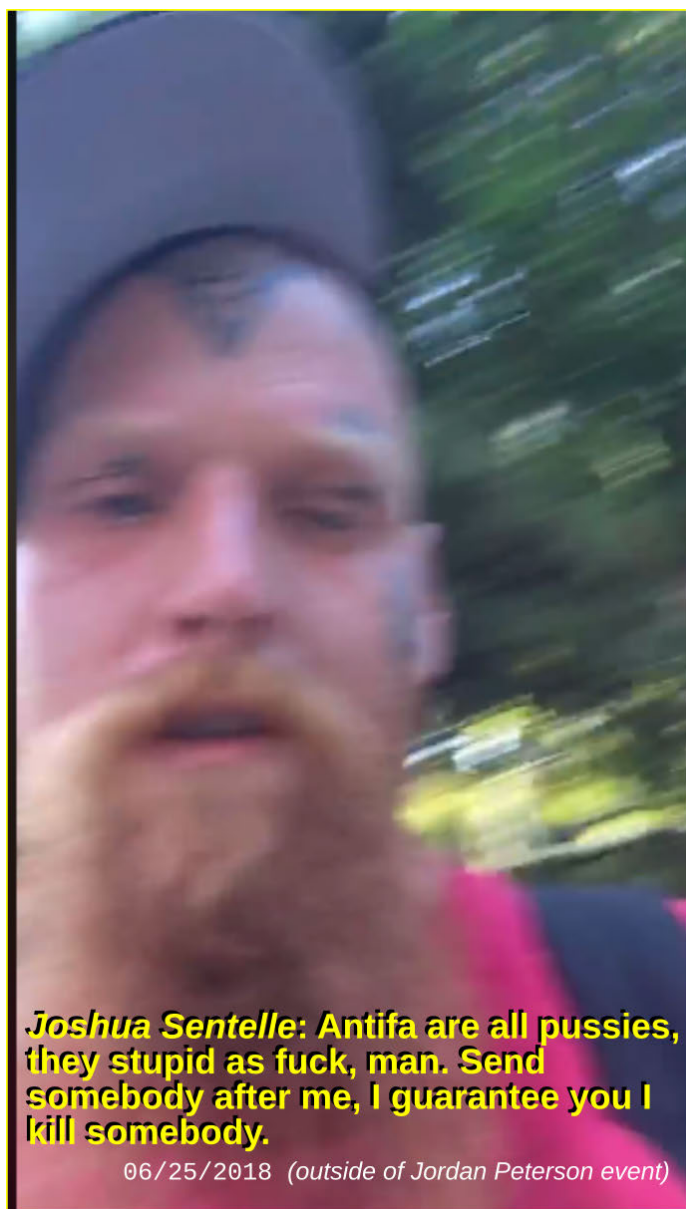

Patriot Prayer follower Sean Wade regularly uses facebook to issue graphic threats and calls for violence. Here we see him advocating extreme violence against a woman being harassed by an alt-right troll on twitter, and also calling Christine Blasey Ford an "enemy of the people" and a "lying c*nt".

HimToo Inspires Violent Misogyny, Death Threats from Patriot Prayer Followers

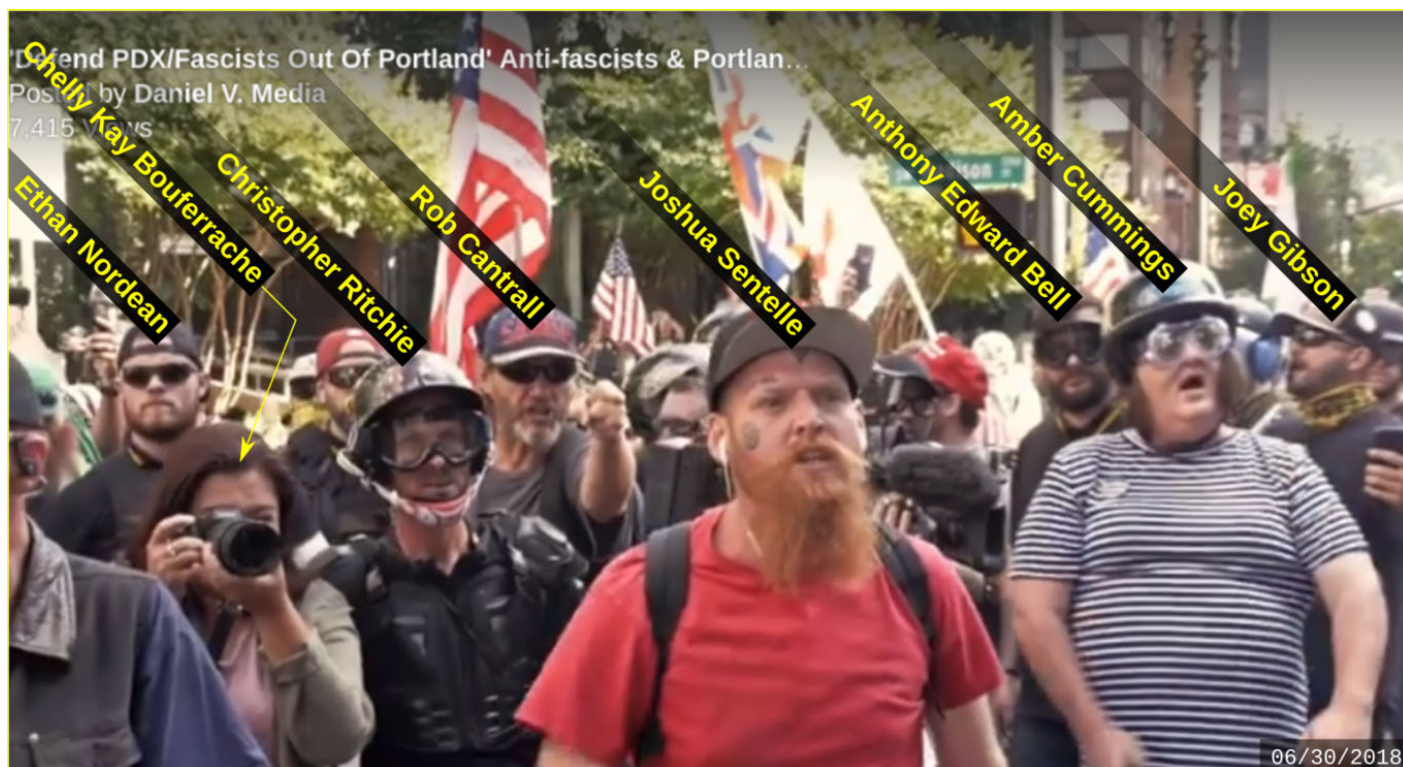

Patriot Prayer follower Joshua Stephen Sentelle only joined their ranks relatively recently, but has a facebook presence in keeping with other violent and unhinged Patriot Prayer followers, often posting live videos in which he fantasizes about enacting graphic violence or complains about "hoes" on Instagram. Sentelle was filmed throwing a Nazi salute (commonly called a "siege heil") and calling activists the N-word at Joey Gibson's June 30, 2018 hate rally in downtown Portland before he also participated in beating anti-fascists alongside Proud Boys and other fascists in attendance.

 Joshua Sentelle fantasizes about murder

Patriot Prayer member Joshua Sentelle talks about his proclivity for knife violence, his connections with the PNW Proud Boys hate group, his persecution fantasies, and his plans to commit murder at a Patriot Prayer event.

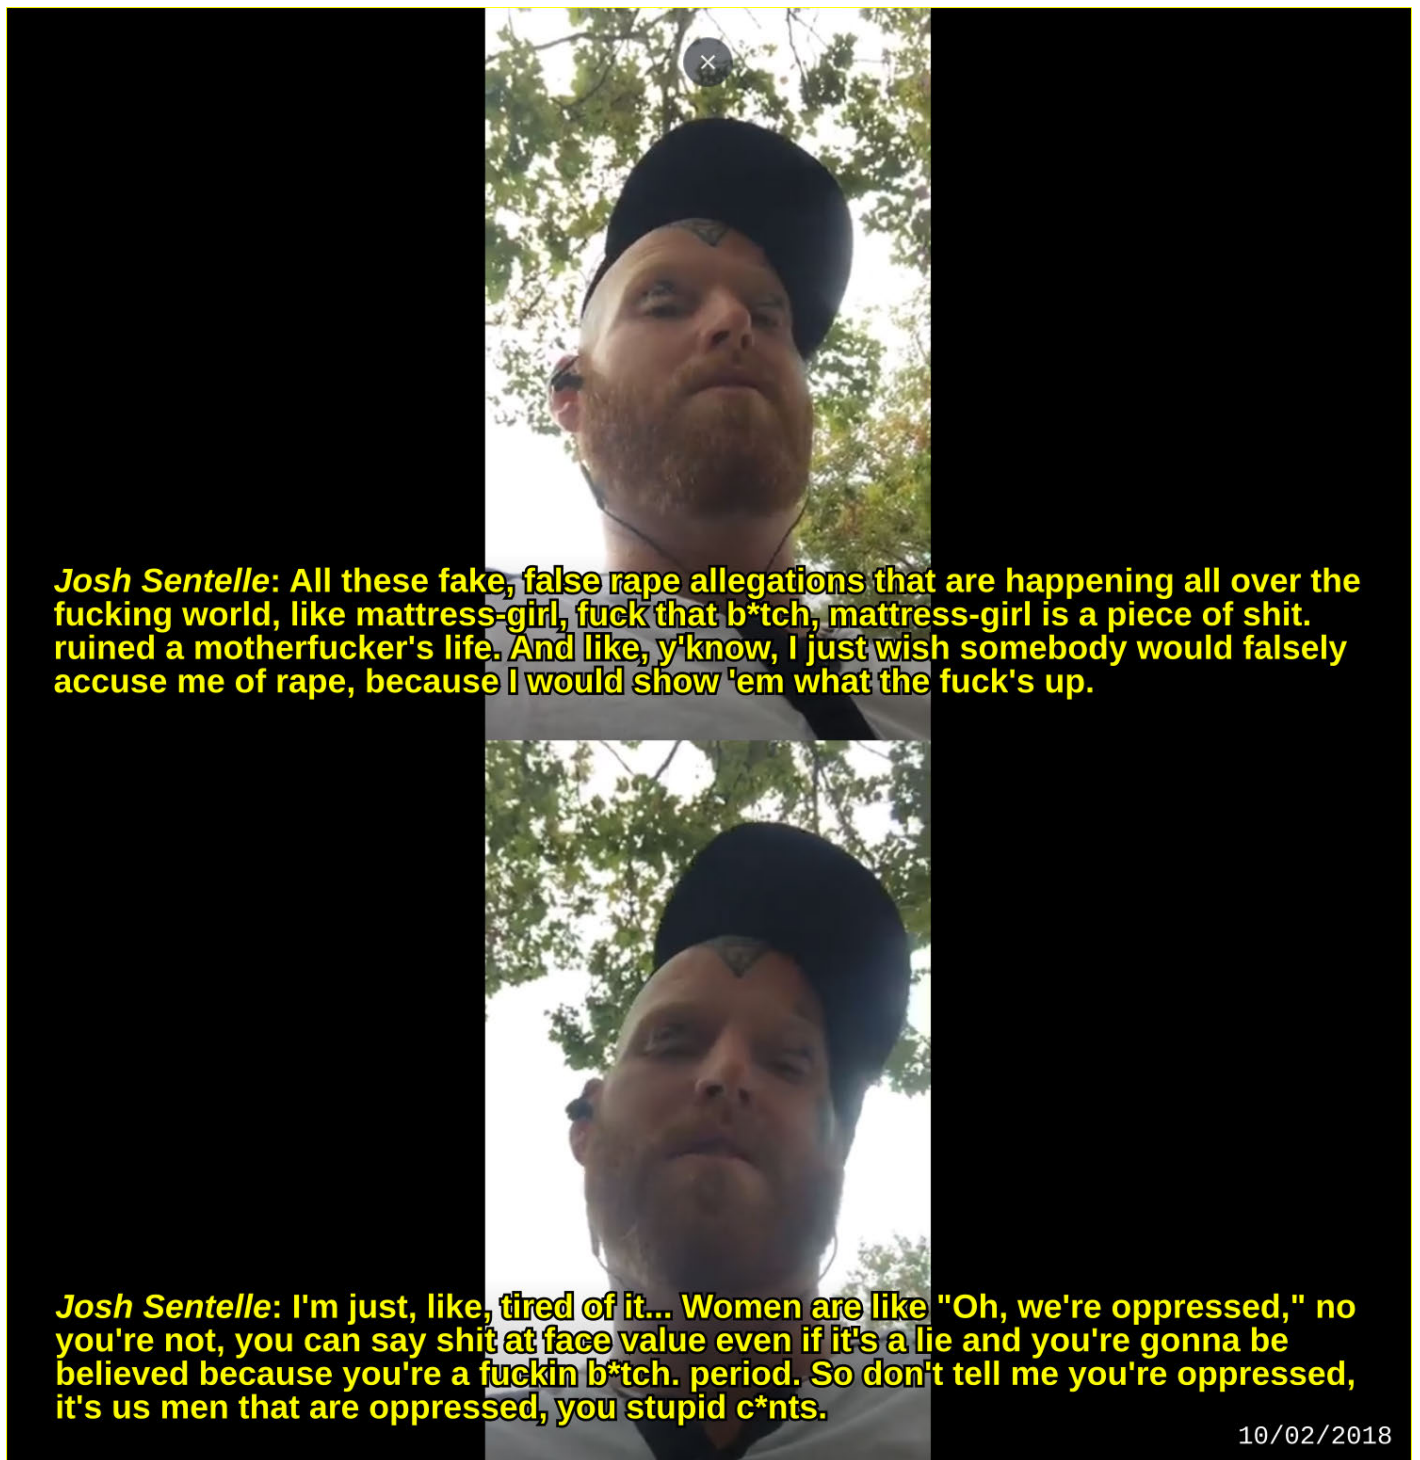

Patriot Prayer member Joshua Sentelle, drawn by the misogynist incel glow of a Jordan Peterson event, again threatens to murder activists and explicitly declares his intentions to attend Patriot Prayer's June 30, 2018 event in downtown Portland.

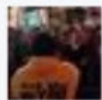

Patriot Prayer member Joshua Sentelle is pictured among other Patriot Prayer followers, including Charlottesville attendee Christopher Ritchie; Proud Boys Ethan Nordean, Rob Cantrall, and Anthony Edward Bell; Bay Area fascist organizer Amber Cummings; far-right photographer “CK Ferrache”; and Patriot Prayer founder Joey Gibson. Sentelle was filmed throwing a fascist roman salute and shouting the N-word at activists before later attacking them with a wooden pole alongside members of the Proud Boys hate group.

More recently, Sentelle has adopted the rhetoric of Haley Adams’ #HimToo movement, complaining about “false rape allegations” and fantasizing that “I just wish somebody would falsely accuse me of rape, because I would show ‘em what the fuck’s up,” before concluding “Women are like “Oh, we’re oppressed,” no you’re not, you can say shit at face value even if it’s a lie and you’re gonna be believed because you’re a fuckin b*tch. period. So don’t tell me you’re oppressed, it’s us men that are oppressed, you stupid c*nts.” Sentelle’s tirades closely resembles Men’s Rights Activists in the early days of the Alt-Right. This ideology has proven deadly on numerous occasions, most prominently Eliot Rodger’s killing spree in Isla Vista, California in 2014.

Joshua Sentelle, filmed throwing roman salutes & screaming the N-word at a recent Patriot Prayer rally, mimics Haley Adams' #HimToo rhetoric to issue threats of violence.

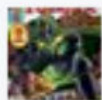

Any reasonable person might conclude that the extreme violence forewarned by Joshua Sentelle's rhetoric is highly reminiscent of another Patriot Prayer adherent, Jeremy Christian, who went on to murder two people after going on exactly the kind of racist tirade which is commonplace at Patriot Prayer rallies.

Jeremy Christian, encouraged by the bellicose tone of the nascent Patriot Prayer's online discussion in facebook comments, issues threats in a facebook thread with HimToo rally organizer Quincy Anatello.

Despite his hollow platitudes to the contrary, Gibson has welcomed and encouraged racist, homophobic, misogynist, and otherwise reactionary violence at his events. Gibson's deputization of Haley Adams to spearhead a rape-apologist rally in the wake of the disgusting spectacle of Brett Kavanaugh's supreme court confirmation presents one more instance of Patriot Prayer's general practice of facilitating organized hate.
